

TO INVESTIGATE DEATH OF CHILD

Second Complaint Within One Month Against the Same School.

YONKERS, N. Y., March 6.—For the second time within a month this year a school child has been followed by a demand upon the authorities for investigation into alleged circumstances at the school where the child was a pupil.

Henry G. Isertell, of 211 Warburton Avenue, whose daughter, Marjorie, died in the Maternity Hospital on Thursday, following an operation for appendicitis, sent a letter to-day to School Superintendent Gorton, in which he told a story involving ill-treatment of the girl by one of her teachers.

After describing what he believes to have been the facts, including alleged indifference to the child's apparent suffering and extra work which she was forced to do in a weekend condition, Mr. Isertell wrote:

"I protest strongly against such treatment in a civilized community and shall lay the case before the Board of Education. Discipline is one thing, but the schools of Yonkers are becoming noted for a species of barbarism which can avail little in the education of the rising generation."

Marjorie Isertell, who was twelve years old, was a pupil in School No. 6, but attended a cooking class in another school building.

"On Thursday, February 25," wrote her father, "my little girl was taken violently ill. In fearful pain, she asked the teacher the way to the retiring room, and was told to go to it herself. This she succeeded in going eventually, and was attacked by a violent chill."

On her return to the classroom she asked to go home, but her request was denied. She was made to keep at her work until, finally overcome by pain, she went to the cloak room and fell to the door in fainting. The teacher compelled her to return and finish the lesson.

Mr. Isertell declared that one of the other pupils, alarmed at Marjorie's appearance, offered to clean her cooking utensils for her. This, the father charged, was not permitted by the teacher who ordered his daughter to clean her sink a second time.

When the girl returned home, according to the letter, she was in high fever, and for three days was delirious, during which period the committee advised "no more home." Persevering and untiring efforts were at first thought to be the cause of her condition, but the diagnosis was later changed to appendicitis. Professor Tuttle of the Hahnemann Hospital, New York, performed the operation.

The teacher who was mentioned in the complaint admitted to-day that the letter was in part true, but said the facts were "slightly colored."

"I knew nothing of the child's illness," she said, "nor had I any knowledge of her having fainted. It is true that one of the girls offered to wash her dishes, but as some of the pupils which this part of their work, I refused to permit her to do so."

Phillips Brooks Underhill, a pupil in School No. 6, died on February 14 of mastoiditis, which was thought to be the result of having been subjected to abuse from a teacher. The charge was investigated, and the teacher was fully exonerated. The Board of Education probably will give Mr. Isertell a hearing on Tuesday.

LOSES PULPIT AND HOME FOR A GIRL

Pastor Confesses His Love Has Wandered Away from His Wife.

CARTHERSVILLE, MO., March 6.—The Rev. Lyman F. Jackson, pastor of the Methodist Church, says he is willing to stake everything on his love for Miss Cora Short, a school teacher and church worker. He has been expelled from his pastorate.

The Rev. Mr. Jackson has a wife and family. Mrs. Jackson, with her three children, has left for her parents' home in Wichita, Kan., where she was last seen, good-bye at the train she said, "I understand, if the time ever comes that you can live with me, you will let me know of course."

The minister says he kept his wife informed from the beginning of his affection for Miss Short, and that he has not deceived her. They both, he says, have decided that the old love of their married days is dead, and that it is better for them to take separate paths.

Pastor Jackson has publicly confessed that his heart has wandered from his wife. He says that through the potency of his great love he is better qualified than ever "to serve the Lord."

His first confession to his parishioners was made when a self-constituted committee of women members of the church waited upon him following his statements recently. He admitted without hesitation that he loved Miss Short, asserted that Mrs. Jackson had been told the facts and denied that he had done wrong.

NOT FOR WILLIAMS

No One Had Served Enough to Present His Portrait.

WASHINGTON, March 6.—When John Shaw Williams, for six years minority leader, left the house to rest two years before coming to the senate, he did not take with him, after an official presentation, any memento of the esteem in which his fellow members held him. It was not the members' fault, however. They unanimously agreed not to give the portrait, a present of the united Mississippi statehood, but the project was so disappointing none had the heart to present it; it was exhibited on the night of March 3 in the house lobby.

"I know I am not handsome," commented Mr. Williams as he looked at the portrait, "but they could not have done worse if they had been painting Adam."

Representative Adam Bede, of Minnesota, stood by his side.

"Who did he look like?" inquired Vice-President Sherman.

"I would not give that to a man who had shot my dog," declared Representative Cushman, of Washington.

And the members decided he was right.

DICKINSON A DEMOCRAT

Hans Always Been One, But Didn't Vote for Hayes.

CHICAGO, ILL., March 6.—A banquet in honor of Jacob M. Dickinson, the new Secretary of War, will be given by the Iroquois Club here next Tuesday. The club is a Democratic organization, of which Mr. Dickinson has long been a member.

Former Mayor Dunn created a sensation in the club by refusing to attend on a general election judge which had gone over to the Republican party. Judge Dickinson "fatty" denied Mr. Dunn's allegation.

"I have always been a Democrat and was still one," he said, smiling after a moment, "although I didn't vote for Bryan."

LEARN'S FIRST LESSON

House Methods Conflict With the Traditions of the Senate.

WASHINGTON, March 6.—The manner in which the senate determines the presence of a quorum was made plain in the senate yesterday, when Senators Lodge and Bailey joined in calling attention to the fact that there had been no record of the presence of a quorum since the sixty-first congress assembled at 12 o'clock on the 4th. Vice-President Sherman, who is familiar with many of the traditions of the House of Representatives, replied that the journal of the 4th contained the names of senators who were then present, and that they constituted a quorum of the body. This statement was shocking to
